REDMOND DOWNTOWN PARK - CONCEPT A

Public Open House 2014.07.12

Concept A takes inspiration from the historic bog landscape that was present on the site many years ago. The organic, lush shapes of the former bog are illustrated through the shapes of the great lawn, water feature, pavilion, and landscape beds. These are overlaid with an urban grid of paving and planting patterns.

Great Lawn/Meadow: The Great Lawn is elevated by two feet, and is ringed by a wood boardwalk, which also includes a variety of smaller spaces for gathering. Performances can be staged in multiple locations around the Great Lawn, enabling good visibility for small or large events.

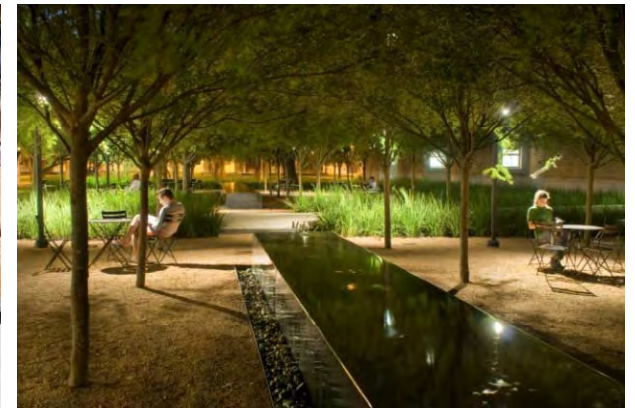

Trees/ Landscape: Many trees on the edges of the site are arranged in regular allee or bosque patterns, creating inviting tree-covered spaces to walk or sit. Plantings in the interior are more organic in shape, and use soft, bermed mounds of plants related to the original bog plants, such as rhododendron and heather.

Pavilion/ Public Art: The Plaza will serve multiple uses and is defined by a sculptural circular pavilion that is suspended above the ground. The pavilion is a floating aluminum disc that becomes a work of art itself as images are projected from the ceiling to the floor and from the floor to ceiling, creating a unique structure for performances and gatherings, and for protection from the elements. A permanent installation—a phrase, rendered in bronze letters—will appear under the circular, raised boardwalk.

Water Feature: The water feature/pond is part of the plaza, which can be flooded to a shallow level for active water play. The pond is an extension of the pavilion and echoes the organic shapes of other parts of the site. A seat wall along one edge allows parents to be nearby.

Seating Opportunities: Concept A features a wide variety of places to sit and relax:

- The boardwalk around the Great Lawn
- Steps on each side of the Great Lawn
- Stone seat walls under the trees along the north and south edges
- Wood bench along the water feature
- Moveable tables and chairs on the boardwalk, and in the dining area next to the Stone House
